To record the events of the past year and to keep ever fresh the story of our last year at John Marshall, is the privilege of the "Marshallite" of 1928. When many years have gone by, we may reopen this volume and move again in the atmosphere of high school days with a fuller appreciation of all that John Marshall and its associations have done for us.

John Marshall Farewell

Our well-conned tasks are finished now,
Our books are laid aside,
And from these halls we go today
In mutual love and pride.

Around the high school campus green,
Its walks, its halls, its trees,
Our mem'ries closely, fondly cling,
And swarm like honey bees.

Upon each well-known favorite spot
We gaze with clouding eyes,
The faces seem to grow more dear,
The hill-tops touch the skies.

Forgotten are the feuds today,
For, ere the morrow's sun,
We shall have breathed a last good-bye
To friends both lost and won.

Or clasp warm hands in mute farewell,
For on this bitter shore
We part today, and part in tears,
To meet as chums no more.

No more the breeze repeats the sound,
Our high school life is o'er,
And from the blue and misty hills
The echoes sigh: "No more."

—Jack E. Williams, '28.

History of the Class of 1928

AS I sat before the glowing fire in the John Marshall House one bleak December day, pondering over the events of the last four years, years which have passed so quickly, the whole history of the class of '28 was unfolded to me. I could see the class of '28 in the role of freshman, sophomore, junior, and, crowning glory of all, senior. In these four years of our school life many difficulties have arisen which have been overcome successfully. Our ever faithful sponsor, Miss Ragland, has been our trusty pilot and now, after guiding us over rough seas, has brought us safe into port.

The first attempt of the flames to envelop the huge logs is very feeble. I can scarcely make out the picture which I see there. As I peer intently into its blaze, I see dimly the officers of the class. Oh, yes, of course, there is Richard Chenery's smiling face. It is too bad that Dick could not stay with us until he finished high school. Just behind Dick, I see the rest of the officers: our vice-president, Richard Patterson; secretary, Carolyn Davidson; business manager and treasurer, Earl Samuels; reporter and publicity agent, Hugh Powell, Jr., and historian for the annual, Louise Hutzler. The officers take me back to my freshman year and remind me of our picnic to Bryan Park. The flames give forth a picture of our baseball game out there and of the good times we had.

As a whole during our freshman year, we moved rather slowly, but that was due to the fact that we were rather timid, being so recently from the junior high schools.

I throw a fresh log on the fire and the flames rise higher. This can't be the same group of people I saw a moment ago. Yet there's a familiar face. Yes, 'tis none other than Billy Powell, and now I remember 'twas he who was our sophomore president. We put lots more pep into our activities our sophomore year and made the world realize that we were truly on the map. I remember now that our sophomore officers were as follows: Arglye Glenn, vice-president; Annette Gordon, treasurer; Arthur Philips, secretary; Doris Hagge, reporter for the Record; and Eleanor Hardaway, student government representative. The red and gold of the flames seem to turn a mellow rose, and in them I can discern girls gayly dressed, couples dancing, laughter, gaiety. Yes, of course, it's the Sophomore-Senior dance! Everybody surely remembers all about that. Then, later, we had a swimming party. Miss Goodwyn, along with Miss Ragland, accompanied us. This was quite an unfortunate experience for the former. She fell into the water head foremost, and, in spite of herself, was forced to display her skill as a swimmer. After this, there was our picnic, which closed our activities for our second year at dear old John Marshall.

The logs crackles, the flames dance about, and the story of our junior year is unfolded. Yes, surely, 'tis our junior year! There looms up our president, Pleasants Bagley; our vice-president, Mary Kirk; our secretary, Eleanor Hardaway; our treasurer, Sherrard Parrish, and our reporter, Tommy Toone. Of course, it is needless to say that our sponsor, Miss Ragland, worked with us and for us continuously. As the flames leap up over the back of the chimney, the story becomes more interesting—even exciting. I can see the dim outline of a dance hall. As my imagination plays in the flames, I see, first, the juniors at their Christmas dance, and then the dance for the seniors given in the spring. And speaking of spring reminds me of Junior Stunt Night. I can see Mary Reeves now, and as though it were yesterday, hear her blood-curdling yells. She was not the only outstanding one, however. Henry Brothers and Ray Cordray put on an exceptionally good act. "Hank" Culpepper's love scene was too real not to have been practiced often and, at that, not publicly. Stunt Night would not have been complete without our high-steppers, Netta Gates, MacClaire Mooklar, George Harper, and Milton Hutchinson. I still chuckle to myself when I recall the operetta. 'Tis needless to say that our winsome, dancing, gypsy heroine, Dutchy Wrenn, was fully appreciated by the fact that he received from his many admirers numerous boxes of cabbage heads, onions, and carrots. Oh, yes, there was Tommy Toone's bathtub scene. We've never ceased wondering whether or not Tommy's mother ever succeeded in getting his ears clean. Then came our junior picnic. All of us went in cars to Rappahannock Banks, and the good old time we had will not be forgotten. This practically closed our junior year, and we joyfully turned our faces toward our next and last year at high school.

The fire is dying down, but in the embers now arises the picture of the senior class. Naturally great things were expected of us, and we have certainly tried to live up to expectations. The first thing on our program was the senior class dance. Then the Pep Club gave the seniors a dance. Both of these will long be remembered. The struggling flames make me realize that it's winter. With winter comes snow, and with snow we had our Christmas play. I laugh now when I recall the funny gifts on the faculty Christmas tree. Since 1928 is "leap year," there was nothing else for us seniors to do but to give a leap year dance. Immediately our plans were laid, and that, like all others, was a "wow."

I see more faces in the flames. Surely I do, and 'tis easy to recognize one in particular, since it's none other than our old junior president, Pleasants Bagby. "Plez," as you know, was our senior president, too. The others I remember easily. There are Margaret Baughman, our vice-president; Martha Thomas, our treasurer; Katherine Rand, our secretary; Charlotte Epps, our reporter, and Mary Anne Hall, historian.

There were several other dances on our senior program. Among them were the sophomore-senior dance and the junior-senior dance. In the spring, according to our long established custom, we had our senior picnic.

I watch the dying flame and try to see more—even into the future. Alas! this is all. These events constitute our various activities at high school. After four successful years, we turn our faces in different directions. Each will follow his own ambition, which may lead him into some high adventure. Some of us are planning to enter college, while others must now take up the burden of life. In the heart of each of us, though, I am sure there will always remain the dear old memories of our high school days. The coals are burning low, and their glow has almost faded. It is just as well, though, since they have done their part in bringing back such vivid pictures to my mind of the class of 1928.

—MARY ANNE HALL, Historian.

Our Country's Guardian

Only a tomb! and yet, within it lies
One who wove on Tradition's loom
A standard to help our struggling country rise.

It won its liberty, that quality long sought,
But it might, with youth's inefficiency,
Have found itself in even tighter meshes caught.

But guidance came; 'though now the man is gone
John Marshall's words, counsel, his very aim
Are the foundations of Tolerance's coming down.

He needs no monument to praise his fame
For alters were formed from his years well spent
And Justice has received a synonym—his name!

—Ruth Percy.

Juniors

Junior Class

The Rime of the Junior

It is a former Marshallite
That stoppeth one of three.
"By thy flashing tie and derby hat,
Now wherefore stopp'st thou me?"

"It is a simple story, lad,
As thou art soon to hear.
I stop thee since I am informed
Thou'rt in thy Junior year."

"Odds Bodkins, yes! I'll say I am
A Junior bold," quoth he.
"Then tell me all about thy class,
And I will set thee free."

"Cliff Hudgins is our president"
(The listener gives a nod);
"And lo! our second officer
Is none but Alice Todd."

"A strong and mighty force it is"
(The alumnus shows delight);
"With our sponsor, dear Miss Shelton,
And our treasurer, Bumps White."

"Thy class is bound for sure success,"
The listener replies,
"For surely, with such officers,
The club is bound to rise."

"Picnics, dances, meetings, plays
Make up our program gay,
But I must off to math. class now
And bid thee a good day."

The former Marshallite is left
Just where the Junior stood.
"A clever bunch they are," he says,
"A class that's truly good!"

—Frank J. McCarthy, Jr.

Honor

Up through the ages rich with pride,
Unsullied "glory" on every side,
Craved and coveted, takes its stand,
To be won by mortal wisdom and mortal hand.
Unworn by its years beneath the sun,
Honor awaits the enduring one!

—Jack E. Williams, '28.

SOPHOMORE

Sophomore Class

The Sophomores

WITH Miss Gill as our sponsor and with plenty of pep, we, the Honorable Sophomores, have just completed a fine school year, and I am sure that when we are Juniors we shall look back and have many fond memories of dances, parties, and other very interesting meetings.

The following as our officers were very successful in organizing our class and holding the interest of all true Marshallites, whether Sophs or not, in our team work:

President.....McIlwaine Thompson
Vice-President.....Mary Henshaw
Secretary.....Taliaferro Thompson
Treasurer.....Margaret Huggins
Reporter.....Vera Spears
Historian.....Katherine Eilers

Our last will and testament is:

To the Sophomores of the coming year we do hereby bequeath the following:

(a) Our school spirit which stands foremost in our class and which they must do their best to carry on.

(b) Room 317 for their meetings, and may they be as happy as we were.

(c) And last, but not least, we do advise the said Sophomores to choose Miss Gill as their sponsor, if we, as Juniors, do not get her first.

—The Sophomores of '28.

A Conception of Twilight

Twilight is a little maid who comes to work at eve,
To put disheveled worlds aright, for Night is to receive;
She rolls away the glowing sun with a reluctant sigh
And polishes the crystal moon and hangs it in the sky;
Then she lights Night's candles, the timid little stars,
And paints the borealis, Nature's batik bars;
Brushing the child-like breezes, she sends them out to play,
And draws the russet curtains on a fading day.
When she sees her mistress enter with an airy tread,
Twilight glides away in silence, and Night reigns instead.

—Ruth Percy.

Freshmen

Freshman Class

The Freshman Class

OUR bearing, as we entered old John Marshall on that fateful February 1, was not one of assurance, because we realized to the fullest extent that we were "rats," or, at least, would be treated as such. As we entered the seemingly forbidden halls, to our increasing bewilderment we noticed on the bulletin boards the following instructions: "In case of fire, 'rats' need not run—Green things do not burn."

However, after organization, we became acquainted with our teachers; then things began to grow exceedingly interesting. Every one has shown true John Marshall spirit, and every member of the Freshman Class has enjoyed the meetings. We have the following officers:

President	JAMES RICE
Vice-President	HAZEL JOHNSON
Secretary	MIRIAM PICKLES
Treasurer	GEORGE ELLIS
Reporter	EVERETT ANDERSON
Historian	ROBERT CLARK
Sponsor	MISS PAULINE BENTON

That's the old spirit of '32! Keep it up!

NOTE—Found on a Freshman registration card:
Name of Parents: Mama and Papa.

What, sir, is your opinion of John Marshall?" queried Boswell.

"Why, sir, I know not whether there be a sounder institution of learning for youth in the world today; however, it is a most clubable school, sir."

"Now by 'clubable' do you not mean," persisted the intrepid questioner, "that the Saints, Duckies, Imps, Peps, and what not, deserve a good clubbing?"

"By no means!" thundered the lexicographer. "I mean only what the word connotes."

Clubs

Senior French Society

HERE we are; a group of struggling young French students who are putting forth every effort to learn to "parlez-vous." We are ambitious, and we not only want to speak French fluently, but we wish to have a clear understanding of the wonderful civilization of France and to appreciate its beautiful literature.

We realize that a good and accurate knowledge of French will be a lifelong asset in many ways, and we all hope to visit "la Belle France" one of these days. Besides this, we can always turn to French as a means of making a livelihood in many and different ways. It serves as something to which we may turn our thoughts in whatever walk of life fate has placed us, and it will serve as a means of escape from the monotonies of every-day routine.

Besides the hard work we do and enjoy, because there is no way to enjoy it without working hard, we have our very enjoyable social affairs. Several of the senior French classes have studied and enacted scenes from the plays we have studied before the class in drama. At Christmas one group of Senior French Club had a banquet as is our usual custom. Besides our monthly club meetings, at which some study of French art or some phase of literary activity constitutes the main part, we plan in the spring picnics and hikes. We shall probably have as we had last year some distinguished person from France to give us an address in French, and we are also looking forward with enthusiasm to joining our group with some of the groups from one or more of the near-by colleges in some special festivities.

Junior French Society

FIFTEEN men on a dead man's chest—" so ran the old chant. A modern version of it might be, as applied to our own group, "The Junior French Society on John Marshall High School steps," for here we are right out in front with the beautiful columns of our beloved building as a background, and we are having our pictures taken for the annual. Now just multiply that same fifteen above by fifteen and you will be nearer the correct number that represents our enthusiastic members. We do not claim nor aspire to be pirates, but we have earnest ambitions to learn to speak French. It may be added that we are doing it, although sometimes our efforts and pronounciation would probably make a Frenchman laugh. We study queer adjectives, troublesome verbs; we cope with the intricacies of the subjunctive and various idioms different from our own and find it great sport to paddle our own canoes up the stream that leads to an appreciation of the French language and a knowledge of the worthwhile things of France.

Added to all the fun we get out of this hard work we have our lighter moments and other enjoyable pastimes at the monthly meetings of our club. We learned some really beautiful old French carols for Christmas and sang them one morning in the auditorium. Many of our members are subscribers of Le Petit Journal, a delightful little paper, which we receive twice a month. We use the jokes and the articles in our club work and keep the papers to read again and enjoy in connection with our future work.

So here we are a big group of enthusiastic pupils who will soon be seniors, and then for the Senior French Club. Don't you wish us good luck?

Senior Spanish Society

WITH the incoming students of the second semester a reorganization of the various sections of our lively and enjoyable Spanish Society took place. The election of officers was great fun, and that once settled, the program committees got busy.

The purpose of our society is to know more about Spain and other countries where Spanish is spoken; to be able to speak and write the language with a clearer idea of its beauty, and to read it for enjoyment now and after we leave school.

We have already had some delightful and entertaining meetings: the first of which was about Valencia, its songs and its sunshine, the beauty of its lovely maidens, its gardens, and its golden fruits. Other regions and customs of Spain will be taken up at a later date.

Many of us are subscribers to El Eco, a little newspaper which keeps us posted on what is going on in countries where Spanish is spoken. Besides this, El Eco gives us splendid material for our club work and often tells how to use it.

So far our society has been an overwhelming success, and we are looking forward to our future meetings with a good deal of pleasure. We are sure when the readers of the annual who are not already members of our Spanish Society will wish to join us next year, and those who go to college in September will remember the good times we have had.

Junior Spanish Society

IN all the Spanish classes, from Spanish I through Spanish III, sections of our big Junior Spanish Society are organized near the beginning of each semester, and new members are initiated into our rites and ceremonies.

The election of officers constitutes a very important part of our first meeting, for we have learned without good officers and leaders, our society will not be as flourishing as we want it to be and as it has always been in the past. We enjoy our monthly meetings, and we sometimes have visitors or some guest of honor at our Christmas festivities. The national customs of the countries where Spanish is spoken constitute an important part of our program. These festivals sometimes take the form of a "Romeia"; sometimes we have little dramas in which we have to learn just how a Spanish boy or girl would act under given circumstances. Sometimes we learn the lovely Spanish songs with their beautiful rythmic cadences so different from our own songs.

In the spring we plan for some out-of-doors meetings, some hikes, and picnics. In the meantime our program committees are arranging material that all of us can enjoy and take part in. Some groups of the Spanish societies have donated books to the library with special dedications, giving the officers and the teacher of the section so that future students will know something of what we have accomplished.

The Hi-Y started in September with only four members. We now have more than twenty and are progressing rapidly. We were well represented at the Virginia State Older Boys' Conference of Hi-Y Clubs all over the State, Y. M. C. A. and churches. Among our other activities were a five-week Sunday afternoon Forum with the Girl Reserves, a series of "Life-Work Problems" talks at the senior assembly, the production and broadcasting of two minstrels, the formation of a League of Honesty in conjunction with the Girl Reserves, some very interesting trips of educational value, and several socials. We hope that our club has helped to carry on the work of the National Hi-Y by our programs.

Debating

THE annual debate between the Van Vort and John Marshall Debating Societies to determine John Marshall's debating team was held in assembly Wednesday, March 28. The speakers on the affirmative side, William Blackwell and Howard Falls, of the John Marshall Debating Society, defeated the Van Vorts, who were represented ably by Elizabeth Floyd and Margaret Hudson. Margaret Hudson and William Blackwell were selected by the judges to represent John Marshall in the state debates.

The subject for debate this year is: Resolved, That Congress should pass the Curtiss-Reed bill authorizing the establishment of a Federal department of education with a secretary in the President's Cabinet. We shall debate William and Mary Freshmen and Petersburg High School in the near future. For the last two years John Marshall has been represented at Charlottesville.

THAT we are really producing excellent orators and debaters is our conclusion at this point in the school year. Untrammeled thought and serious discussion run rife in the society, and debating flourishes. We are, in truth, becoming "silvery-tongued orators."

The society has increased greatly in size since last year. We have probably twice as many members now as then, and so we have many more debates. As yet we have debated only once outside of the society. On that occasion our team, composed of J. V. Hall and Carey Newton, defeated the representatives of the Van Vort Society. However, we expect to make this only one of a long line of victories.

J. M. H. S. CREDO

Imitation is the sincerest flattery; therefore, we compliment George Jean Nathan, of "College Humor," by presenting a special list of beliefs held by the Class of 1928. Here they are:

1. That all cadet officers are hard-boiled.
2. That tough luck is the only thing that keeps us from winning all the games we play.
3. That a girl who passes all her classes must be a terrible flop—else she'd be too busy to study.
4. That the better an excuse is, the more likely it is to be a false.
5. That many a high school teacher has eyes in the back of her head.
6. That a pretty girl will be passed in any man's class without trouble.
7. That a high school boy invariably hands a "line" on his first date—likewise his second.
8. That a little love is a delightful thing; too much is a calamity.
9. That every good-looking boy has a girl already.
10. That a cadet captain can always get a date, regardless of his personality.
11. That all rats are scared to death of the seniors.
12. That all seniors despise the lowly rat.
13. That all teachers give too much homework.
14. That it's foolish to do homework unless you're sure the teacher is going to inspect it.
15. That English book reports and history parallel reports are nuisances.
16. That there is something wrong with the girl who isn't dated up for at least three weeks ahead.
17. That a boy who has all his Sunday night dates with one certain girl is beyond the reach of other girls.
18. That the library would be a fine place to have dates if it were not for the librarian.
19. That the older a teacher is, the stricter she is.
20. That all teachers have their favorites.
21. That all street cars are slow when one is late for school.
22. That all blondes are either very innocent or very, very wicked.
23. That the height of popularity is to have the boy friend come down from V. P. I., V. M. I., W. & L., Fork Union, or Augusta to see a girl.
24. That the only way to get anything printed in a high school magazine is to have pull with the editors.
25. That one certainly earns his diploma at high school.
26. That it always rains on the days one has to cross the street between periods.
27. That a cadet uniform improves any boy's chances with the girls.
28. That most John Marshall graduates become famous.
29. That any one can recognize at first glance a high school cadet.
30. That high school doesn't get nearly as much credit as it deserves.
31. That next year's senior class will be a terrible "flop" unless some of us fail this year.
32. That John Marshall is a grand old school, but four (or five, or six, as the case may be) years of it are enough for anybody.

THE Imp Club was organized in nineteen twenty-five by Ouida Dixon and Aileen Traylor through the intelligent leadership and great interest of our sponsor, Miss Virginia Sydnor. We have become a club to which every member is proud of belonging.

Our purpose is to encourage school spirit and fellowship. We stand for each other and for John Marshall first, last, and always.

We boast of the fact that we were the first club to have a so-called uniform. As you may see in the picture, our Imp shirts are quite attractive—even the goat realizes it, and our mascot is pulling hard for us.

For the past two years we have had in our membership the president of the Girl Reserves. Nearly all of the Imps take an active part in this organization and many of them hold offices. We have three sponsors of the Cadet Corps, the vice-president of the Athletic Association, the secretary of the Senior Class, the vice-president of the Junior Class, two basketball stars, a cheerleader, and the stadium queen.

Now we ask you, "Isn't Impishness an asset to dear ole J. M. H. S.?"

PEP

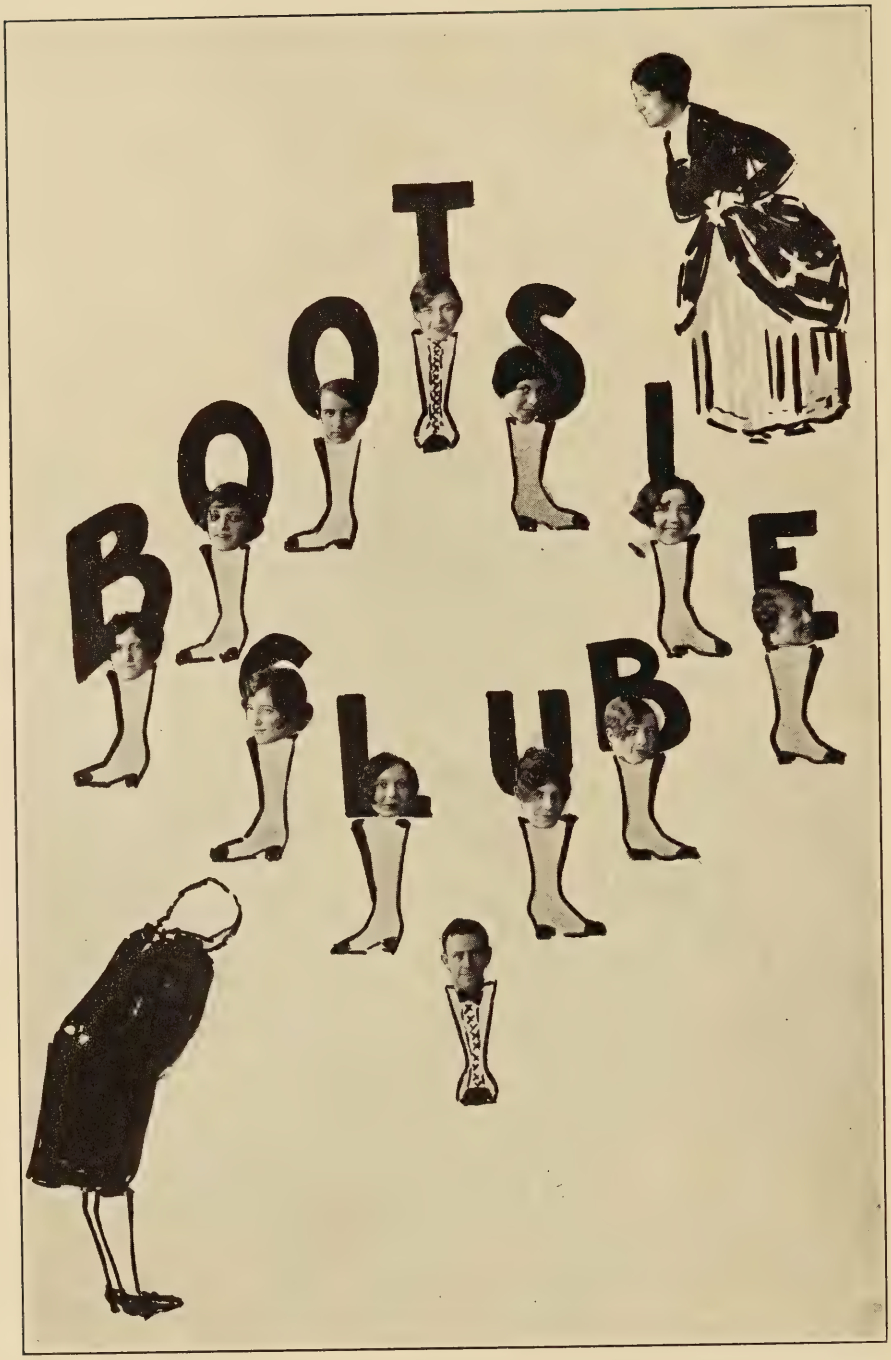
Pep Club

There is a club within our town
Of wondrous fame and great renown;
The reason it has such a "rep"
Is that its members are full of pep.
Miss Williams, our sponsor, is peppy, too,
And inspires us in whate'er we do.
Our president, "Bo," has power to make
A "go" of all we undertake,
While Virginia's always ready to lend
Her aid, on which you can depend.
Of Marjorie we're justly proud;
She is the life of every crowd,
While folks are known to walk a mile
To catch a glimpse of Liz's smile.
Don't count "Icky" among the shirkers—
She's really one of our best workers.
Though Helene and Alice just would depart,
They hold a big place in everyone's heart.
Of Mary we expect great things;
We think her dancing fit for kings.
Another maiden of whom we are vain
Is that popular young lady, Jane.
And as for our Annes—they're popular too.
Their friends are numerous, their enemies few.
Athletic ability and book-sense plus
Made Martha seem quite accomplished to us,
While "Lele," though she may be small,
Is a credit to the club and beloved by us all.
Best luck, success, and good fortune, all three,
We wish for Roxane Mathieu, our president-to-be.



BOOTSIE
CLUB

Bootsie Club

The Bootsie Club of '28
Started the year off right
By getting stunning uniforms
Of green and gold and white.
Our winsome girls you've surely met;
If you haven't, you've missed great fun;
And lest their names you may forget,
We'll call them, one by one.

Our leader, first, shall take her place:
Fair Martha Thomas, loved by all;
With dignity and gentle grace,
She thus presides within our hall.
To her in homage heads are bent,
For Martha is our president.

The second in command is seen:
She might be called a beauty queen;
She is Miss Thompson—Ernestine.
We titled her vice-president,
And then we rested, well content
To bask 'neath charms so opulent.

To keep the record is an art;
Blithe Netta Gates acts well her part;
The secretary's post has she,
Her job is tackled with pep and glee;
Happy-go-lucky all day long,
Life holds for her its sweetest song.

Whew! counting shekels is a task!
Alice Van Denburgh does not ask
Assistance. She's our treasurer,
Dependable, and does not err.
But when we give to her our treasure,
We add a bit of love—good measure.

And now the scribe comes into view:
A corking good one we have, too.
Anne Bradley, popular, sincere,
Reporter for the club this year.
She tells what we say or do not say,
And somehow gets the news alway.

Miss Cobb, our sponsor, teaches art.
Fondly enshrined within each heart
Of Bootsie members does she dwell,
Our love for her we long to tell;
May blessings all her way attend,
She is the Bootsie's loyal friend.

Oh, yes; there is our mascot, too.
'Tis Peaco Todd; Of course, you knew
That he was on the football team,
A doughty captain true, we deem;
But, ah! the honors of the field
Must to the Bootsie Club now yield,
For lovely maidens—'tis not odd—
Claim as their mascot Peaco Todd.

There's Mike Rowland with winning ways,
And Virginia Howey, sincere all her days,
Jane Dickinson is sweet, attractive,
And Charlotte Dutrow's wit is active,
While Mary Reeves is very smart,
But, also, Elizabeth Crighton lost her heart!
Well, here is the bunch, and we're sure you'll agree,
That the Bootsie Club is as fine as can be.

"The white rose tree that spent its musk
For lovers' sweeter praise,
The stately walks we sought at dusk
Have missed thee many days.

"Again, with once-familiar feet,
I tread the old parterre—
But, oh! its bloom is now less sweet
Than when thy face was there.

I take the wild perfume;
I pluck a rose to let it fall
And perish in the gloom."

Chic Club

Chic Club

THE Chic Club was organized four years ago by Miss Grace Slater. The first Chics were: Misses Grace Slater, Louise Nance, Mari Haskins, Lora Lee Robinson, Eleanor Hasbrouck, Virginia Smith, Virginia Hilberry, Emma Taliaferro, Virginia Ford, and Helen Harwood.

Miss Dorothy Harris has been sponsor during the four years, and her wit and good sportsmanship have made her an ideal one.

The present Chics are: Misses Maclaire Mooklar, president; Catherine Flake, secretary-treasurer; Margaret Miller, reporter; Elizabeth Phillips, Jean Foster, Katherine Lumsden, Jacqueline Simpson, Katherine Russell, Hibernia McMullim, Julia Nance, Virginia Taylor, Betsy Milton, and George Ware, mascot.

When the Chics first wore their black dresses and yellow scarfs, they created quite a bit of excitement. Every one was curious to know what C thirteen on the back of the scarfs represented. Now, it is most probably known that the Chics colors are yellow and black and their limited number is thirteen.

The Chics are known for their originality and individuality. Of course, these characteristics make the Chic Club one of the most popular and certainly the "Chiciest" club in John Marshall.

The Class of Drama

AMONG those things of which a Marshallite should be proudest is the Class of Drama of John Marshall High School. A number of the alumni of this school who received their training in this organization have achieved marked success in dramatics; some on the stages of our colleges, and others on the professional stage. In addition to this it has established a high standard for plays in the minds of those who have been benefited by membership in it.

The Class of Drama has a fourfold purpose: first, to create an interest in the best type of plays; second, to give the students an opportunity to express themselves through the medium of the stage; third, to develop latent theatrical talent; and, fourth, to keep abreast of the current stage.

The Class of Drama has just completed one of its most successful years. It was especially successful in accomplishing its declared purpose. One medium through which this was done was the production of plays. Practically all of the first semester of the year was taken up by producing the four one-act plays which were given to the public the first of January with such success. These plays were The Intruder, Two Slatterns and a King, Three Pills in a Bottle, and The Wedding Present. Their success was especially significant because of the fact that some of the plays were very hard to produce. Previous to their public performance, two of the plays, Two Slatterns and a King and The Wedding Present, were given before the Class of Drama.

During the early part of the second semester, five plays were produced before the regular meetings of the Dramatic Club as part of its regular program. These plays were: Ile, by Eugene O'Neil; The Beaded Buckle and The Last of the Lowries, by the Carolina Play-Makers; The Beauty and the Jacobin, by Booth Tarkington, and Five Ghosts. In producing these plays, efforts were made to use only those members of the organization who had not taken part in previous productions. The degree of perfection to which they attained and the enthusiasm with which they were received are proofs of the progress that the club has made in accomplishing its purpose. Interspersed among these lays, interesting talks were given on Eva La Gallienne and her Civic Reportory Theatre, The Current Theatrical Season, and other interesting subjects. These instructive talks were equally as successful as were the plays.

The weekly meetings are conducted by a modified parliamentary law which, restraining without repressing, creates a pleasant, easy, atmosphere. The social features are not neglected. Several times each semester delightful little parties are given.

The Class of Drama is one of the few school clubs which are really interesting and at the same time instructive. It teaches while entertaining. During the latter part of the year efforts were made to obtain Junior and Freshman members. It is hoped that the club will be even more successful in the future than in the past.

SCENES

ACT 1—The Richardson-Collum apartment, New York City, Late in July.

ACT 2—The Van Zile summer home, Northampton, L. I. Early August.

ACT 3—The same. A few days later.

Oh, Polly had a dreadful past! Yes, she was a most immoral individual, using her charms always in order to realize her ends. Why, had she not even caused thrones to sway? Such was this person who served as the central figure of "Polly With a Past," the spring play given by John Marshall High School.

As the curtain rises, Clay and Harry are revealed to the audience. Soon they are joined by Rex Van Zile, who tells them of his seemingly hopeless love affair. How will Myrtle ever be made to stop reforming people and turn to answer the love call of the pure Rex?

Ah! that's it. Perhaps if Rex were in need of a little reforming, his fair one would turn towards him. Then she would at least allow him to come into her presence and try to lead him back to the straight and narrow path.

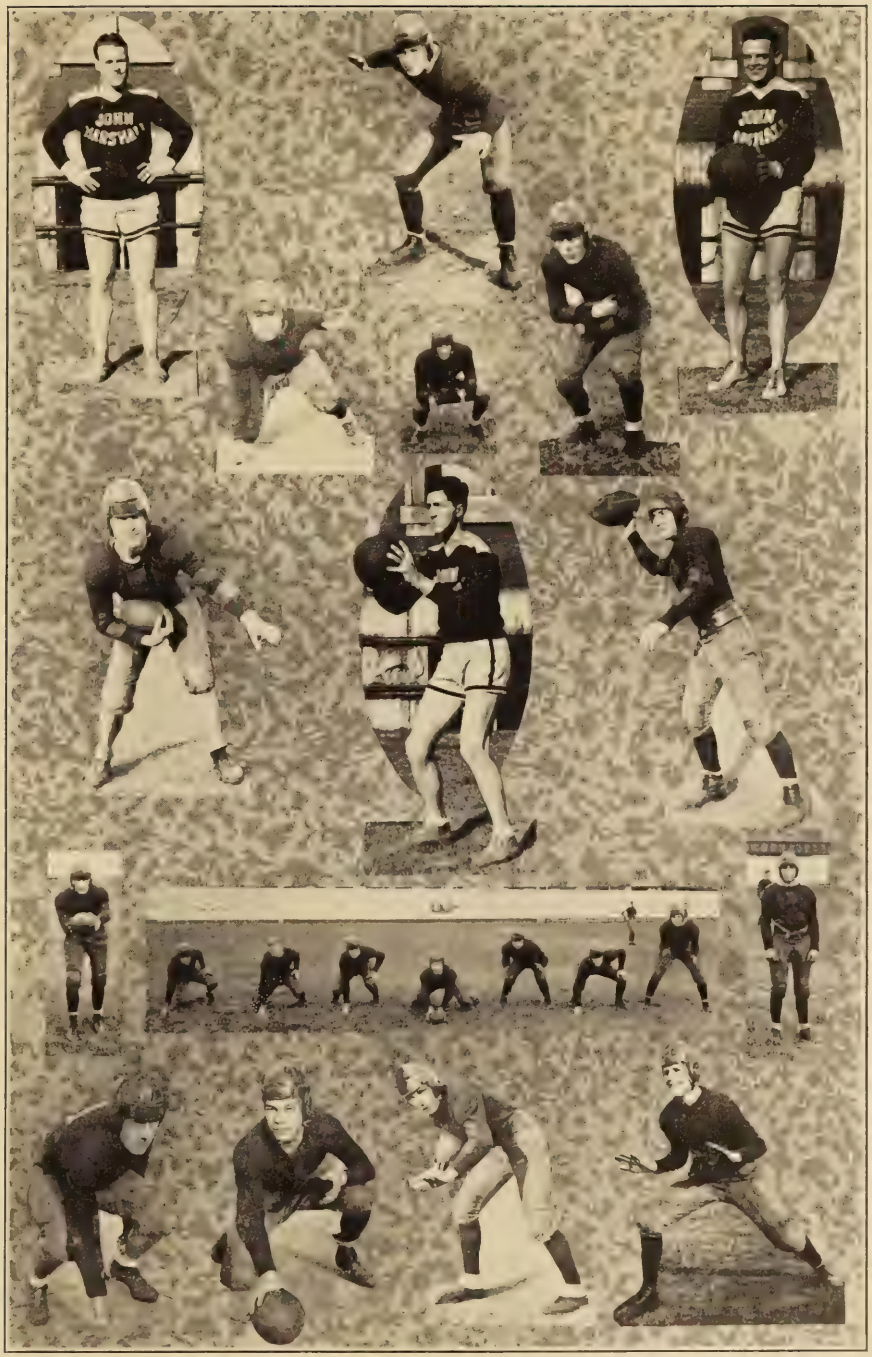
With this plan in mind, Polly, a minister's daughter from East Gilead, acting as a servant, is converted into the winsome Mademoiselle Paulette Bady—yes, the lady for whom the great pianist, Petrowski, had killed himself. This very Paulette, enwrapped in so many scandals that men (or rather women) hang their heads and use all means to avoid her—this Paulette leads Rex into her trap and succeeds in making Myrtle's reforms necessary. In fact, Miss Davis has gone so far as to make up her mind that Rex must always have her with him to keep him from erring when—oh! for the uncertainty of man!—Rex decides that he doesn't really love Myrtle. Instead, Polly seems to be the girl of his dreams.

Then comes the untangling of the plot. So thoroughly has Polly convinced the people with whom she comes in contact that she is Paulette with a past that not until Stiles, another individual from the great metropolis of East Gilead, and the noted Petrowski himself appear to prove her innocent do people see that she has been only pretending.

Finally, as all good plays have a way of ending, the curtain drops, cutting from the audience's view a scene in which Rex and Polly are "stealing a kiss behind Uncle's back."

ATHLETICS

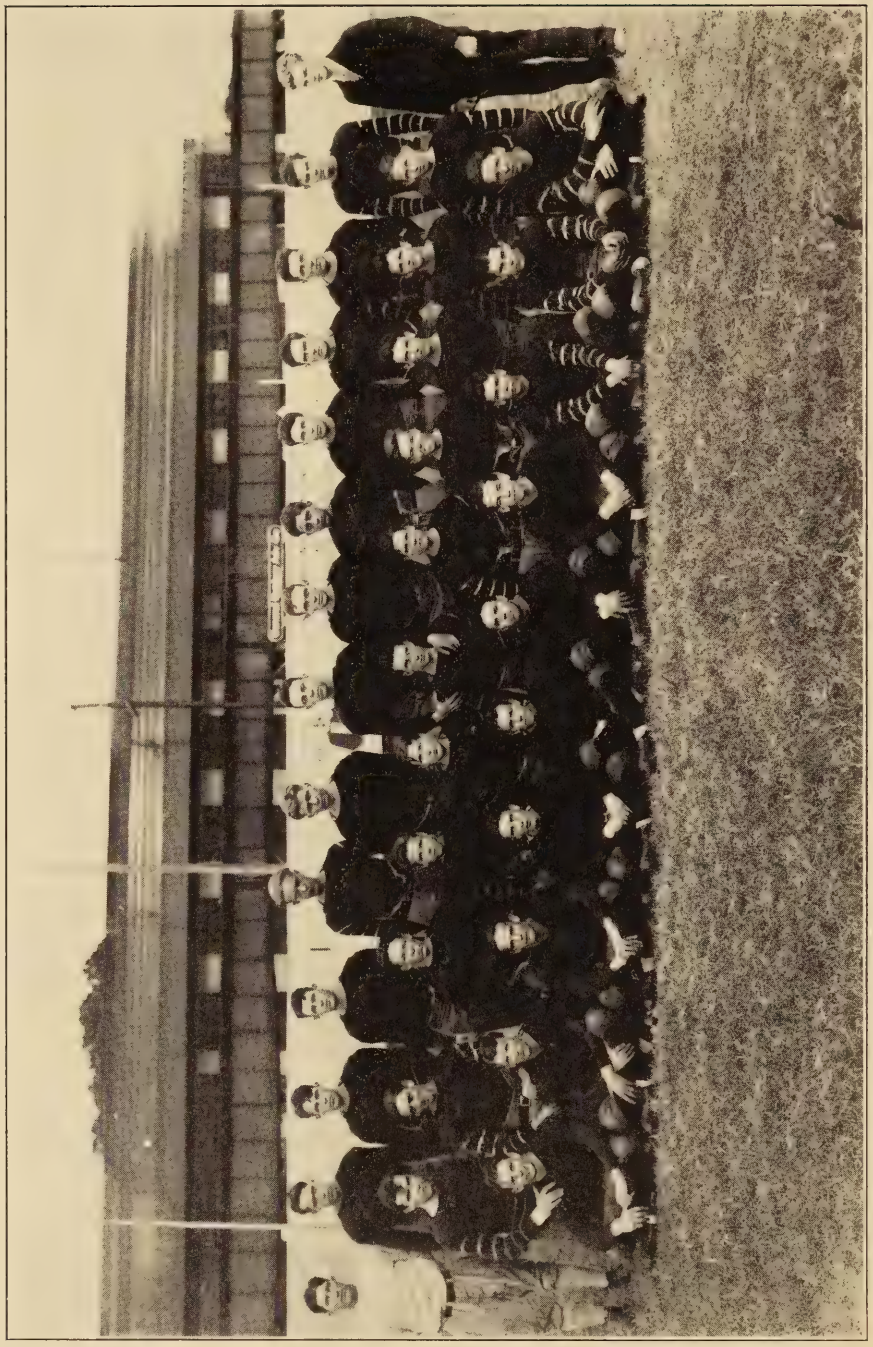
Coach Dave Miller



In Action

There is no conflict between the brain and the biceps. Rather should the harmonious development of both tend toward one common goal. Shakespeare was no milksop, even though his mental powers were extraordinarily developed, and Gene Tunney is no less the athlete because he can and does enjoy Shakespeare.

FOOT BALL



Football Team

Football

FOOTBALL season is over. Again John Marshall has carved its name in the halls of fame in the blazing letters of victory. The 1927 team has left an indelible print in the history of high school athletics, a print that shall not be erased or covered by the sands of Time.

With such a capable and likable leader as Coach Dave Miller, John Marshall should be a first-class opponent for any prep school team. With the backing that has been shown in former seasons by high school supporters, our team should be a winner. It was. Never has Coach Miller produced such favorable results, never has he worked harder, done more, or displayed a higher sense of loyalty to his adopted school, John Marshall, than he has shown in this year's work. Those that stood behind the team in the way of selling tickets, attending the games, arousing interest outside of the school—those that in devious ways made it possible for the team to do what it did, they should be given much credit for their part in the triumph.

It was said that last year was a banner year for football in John Marshall. True it did not win the city championship, but last year's team was undefeated in the city. Of the nine games the team played it won five, lost two, and tied two. It scored one hundred and six points to the forty-four of its opponents.

This year the team did not win the championship, but it tied with its ancient rival, McGuire, for those honors. The team played nine games, won seven, lost one, and tied one. Under the leadership of the diminutive Captain Todd, John Marshall rolled up one hundred and fifteen points to its opponents' thirty.

It will be well to mention that Maury was among the seven won, and the game with Newport News was the only one lost during the season and that game ended with the score Newport News 2—John Marshall 0.

If last year was a banner year, what will the critics say of the team of '27?

When on September 8 Coach Miller sent out the call for football candidates, sixty reported. Among these were only four letter men; namely, Carter Haase, Ross Atkinson, Charles (Chat) Jeter, and Peaco Todd. Only four. But what a four.

It was an exceedingly difficult task which Coach Miller faced, that of building a satisfying football team around the small nucleus of four men and of whipping the green material into an efficient machine in time for the first game, September 30. Money was required for uniforms, transportation, and other things. Besides ardent enthusiasm and whole-hearted support of the entire student body and faculty had to be worked up.

To meet these requirements the voice of Coach Dave Miller was heard in the auditorium announcing that he desired and expected a great number of the students to join the Athletic Association. Interest was aroused by awarding a cup to the first class that reported one hundred per cent membership in that organization. On the second day six home runs reported one hundred per cent members, but the class in "211" under Miss Ragland received the cup.

It was then a season of practice, practice, and practice. A practice that was to bring perfection, the toiling day after day that was to show such results later in the season. So then it was practice, practice, practice.

George Ware was elected manager, an ever-cheerful, conscientious care-taker of the team, a fellow that Coach Miller could always depend on to be there with the goods. Manager Ware in conjunction with Coach Miller arranged the following schedule. (The scores are given with the schedule.):

September	30—J. M., 12;	Randolph-Macon Freshmen,0.
October	7—J. M., 20;	University of Richmond Freshmen, 7.

"JOHN MARSHALL vs. RANDOLPH-MACON FRESH"

Drama of Two Acts, Four Scenes
Scene: Mayo Island
Time: September 30, 3:30 P. M.
Weather: Fair

FIRST ACT

SCENE ONE: Pigskin seesawed to and fro with neither side scoring.

SCENE TWO: At the blow of the whistle, John Marshall uncorked a flashy aerial attack that swept the "Jackets" off their feet. Via the air route, Taylor to Smith, resulted in the first touchdown. Captain Todd pulled down a brilliant pass from Taylor and scooted around left end for six more points. Both tries for goal missed.

SECOND ACT

SCENE THREE: No brilliancy shown by either side.

SCENE FOUR: With the arrival of the middle of the quarter, the "Jackets" made for revenge. Recovering the ball, they pushed and shoved from the ten-yard line to within three inches of J. M.'s lat while parallel.

SCORE: John Marshall, 12; Randolph-Macon Freshmen, 0.
Taylor, Todd, and Smith played the leading roles, ably supported by Barnes, Openheimer, and Haase.

CURTAIN

One week later found the "Rats" of the University of Richmond invading Mayo Island for honors of conquest. They were repulsed by the one-sided score of 20 to 7. It was in this game that Captain Peaco Todd made one of the prettiest runs of the season. Catching the ball on the Freshmen's kick, he ran half the length of the field to the glory of a touchdown. The "Justices" scored eighteen points to the seven of their opponents. The final result was John Marshall 20, University of Richmond Freshmen 7. We scored the other two points with safety.

Petersburg also ran—

As usual our friends from Goobertown hotly contested our rights of triumph, but we overcame them to the tune of 19 to 7. The Southsiders returned home dejected in body and spirit.

Our game with Blackstone High School was unusual in that the score at the end of the first half was 7 to 0 in favor of Blackstone.

It seems as though Coach Miller uttered a few kind-hearted epithets in a kind-hearted manner to an attentive squad. The results were surprising to the bewildered Blackstonites. The score was John Marshall 20, Blackstone 7.

Benedictine was then the victim of our prowess. After much waving of Blue and White, and Green and White, cheer practices, and various other preparations, we settled down to the business of demolishing the representatives of our Irish rivals.

Peaco's run of thirty-five yards placed us in a position to score, the feat being accomplished by Haase, who carried the oval across the line for the first six points. Taylor was very efficient in booting the ball over the bar for the extra point. The bearers of the green and white were eager to get out the way of "Ye Imperial Battering-Rams," Baker and Haase. After many short gains the massive form of Baker was seen to hurtle through the Benedictine line for another touchdown. This play ended the scoring for the day. The final reports were that John Marshall won by the score of 13 to 0.

It was on Friday, November 4, that we played St. Christopher. Then John Marshall received one of the biggest scares of the season. We thought that the Saints would be easy meat for the hungry "Justices," but at the end of the first half the Saints were leading with the score of 7 to 6.

But the tide soon changed. Smith, Baker, and Haase (2) scored touchdowns. Smith in the first half; the others in the second half. Again the spirit of victory had blessed John Marshall, and the city champions of last year had lost by the score of 24 to 7.

The gameness of Taylor was evident in that he played through the second half with a twisted ankle. Williams, Walker, Powell and Todd, Captain Meacham and Hobson were the stars of the occasion. Brightest of all, however, shone the twin planets, Baker and Haase.

Armistice Day found another war between the adherents of the Blue and White and those who upheld the standard of Maury.

John Marshall won, 7 to 0. We certainly shall remember that Armistice Day.

The game with McGuire was a soul-stirring, thrilling tussle for honors. In the first half Thomas and the McGuire team completely outclassed John Marshall, but in the vesper period Captain Todd retaliated with vigor. For weeks and weeks the football men had been waiting to put their skill and strength against that of McGuire and especially Thomas. Heralded as the phantom of prep football, Thomas had made a "Sheridan's March" through his former opponents. Could the "Justices" stop this plunging, fleeting, phantom?

During the opening period the ball swung up and down the field like the pendulum of a clock. In the vesper period Red Oliver made his debut into his first full game of football. He was the most consistent ground-gainer of the "Justices' " assortment. He tore the McGuire line for short gains until at last the two-yard line was reached. Here McGuire did some real work. Oliver failed in his attempt to make those two yards. The eleven men in red and black formed themselves into a rod of steel that even a Red Oliver could not break. When the final whistle blew, it found the ball near mid-field and the score was still 0 to 0, favor of the referee, or maybe the head linesman. Thomas had been stopped. This was the only game that he did not make at least two touchdowns. Hugh Powell, Jess Mahoney, Red Oliver, Captain Todd, and Chat Jeter deserve the most credit of the glory-covered "Justices."

For ye annual turkey-day game John Marshall journed to Newport News for ye contest between ye "Shipbuilders" and ye "Justices." Some three hundred patriotic Marshallites followed the team to the seaside city. Newport News is usually the strongest team that John Marshall plays during the season, therefore every man did his best. The "Justices" were, according to their usual form this season, slow in getting started, registering two first down in the first half, one in the third quarter, and coming back strongly in the final with five. It was in the second quarter that Taylor stepped out of bounds, giving Newport News two points, the only points scored during the whole game. This glory of being undefeated during the whole season was spoiled by this so-called "tough break."

The letter of John Marshall has long been sought, and through the years the athletes of John Marshall have fought valiantly for it. Its bestowal upon a Marshallite is a great honor. Those who were so honored this year are the following: Captain Peaco Todd, Captain-elect Henry Taylor, Hugh Powell, Jesse Mahoney, Elliot (Mike) Mahoney, Jack Walker, Chat Jeter, Carter Haase, Bill Betts, Warren Pearman, Billy Williams, Ross Atkinson, Roland Smith, St. Julian Oppenheimer, Clarence Oliver, Gordon Baker, Frank Barnes, and Manager George Ware.

BASKET BALL

Basketball

Coach ..... DAVE MILLER
Captain ..... LUDWELL SHERMAN
Manager ..... J. E. EPPS, JR.

MINUS three of the stars who sparkled on the court during the eventful 1927 campaign, the Marshallite quint of 1928 enjoyed a fairly successful season, and came close to equaling a certain feat of its predecessor. The "Justices" carried off honors in thirteen games, but went down in defeat on five other occasions. The championship team of 1927 won nineteen out of twenty games.

When Coach Dave Miller trumpeted the call for basketball men, only three veterans from that brilliant '27 quint were on hand. They were Captain Lud Sherman, Johnny Adams, and Gordon Baker. Gone were Bill King, Phess Woodson, and Bill Downey. Thus was Coach Miller faced with the problem of developing a capable forward to work with Adams and a guard to toil with the flashy little Lud Sherman. Baker, whose play during the 1927 tournament at Lexington was an outstanding feature of his team's work, was a fixture at center. Louis Krapin was used at forward throughout the past season, while Harry Swink, reserve from last year, Doug. Reams, and Junie Smith did duty on the defense. Swink's graduation in February threw the bulk of the guard work on Reams' shoulders, and well did the slim fellow handle the task.

Seven letters were awarded. Here are the boys who earned them: Captain Lud Sherman, guard; Doug. Reams, guard; Captain-elect Gordon Baker, center; Louis Krapin, forward; Johnny Adams, forward; Harry Swink, guard; J. E. Epps, manager.

It is interesting to note that each of the teams who defeated John Marshall, save Staunton M. A., were previously defeated or in turn beaten by the "Justices."

Girls' Basketball Team

Girls' Basketball

ONE HUNDRED strong!

That was the way the season began. Since so few of the veteran players were back, we felt greatly encouraged at the response of these hundred girls. The beginners were given the best of opportunities for learning the game, while those who were more familiar with basketball practiced on other days.

Sturdily on through the fall we played, not for victory, but for the love of playing. No doubt, every girl who played basketball under the supervision of Mrs. Wood has learned the meaning of sportsmanship and the value of health of body, mind, and spirit. Because we have learned to "play the game," we have grown, not only in body, but also in strength of character. Each one of us has been made to feel what it is to "play fair."

To many of us, this season has meant more than any other experience in high school. It has given to us something which we can carry on through life, something that cannot be taken away.

Between Thanksgiving and Christmas tournaments were arranged by the manager, Mary Kirk, among the "Tigers," "The Little Scorpions," "The Bearcats," "Lions," "The Cubs," and "The Reds." The class teams were then chosen, and games among the sophomores, juniors, and seniors set in. When we returned after the Christmas holidays, there was the list of girls chosen for the squad. They were Margaret Baughman, Lelia Chewning, Stella Cooke, Bonner de Garmo, Edith Hogan, Katherine Hull, Mary Kirk, Gladys Kroog, Caroline Lingle, Roxane Mathews, Irene Noldie, Julia Anne Fippin, Elizabeth Rowland, Anne Sadler, Martha Sanders, Lucille Schmidt, Frances Stacy, Lida Stokes, and Catherine Tate.

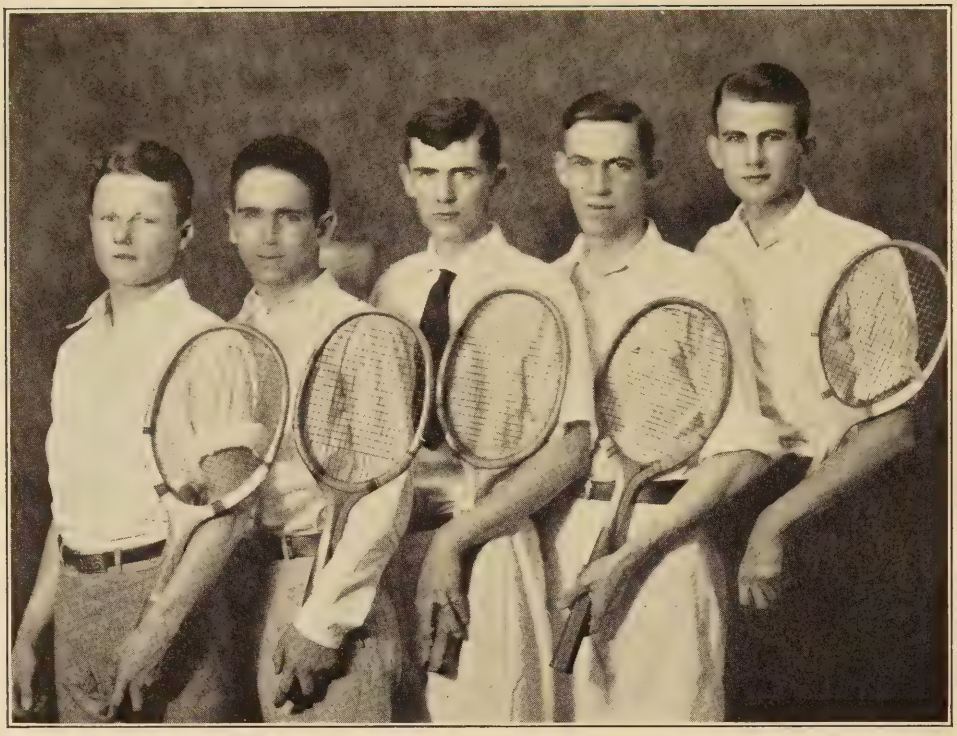
Then came the "times that try men's souls," when pastries, sweets, and between-meal "snacks" had to be eliminated. Up to the last of the season the squad kept up hard practise, emphasizing technique. After Margaret Baughman had been elected captain, the interscholastic conflicts began in full swing, the games being arranged as follows:

Practice Games

John Marshall-C. & O., January 23.
John Marshall-Richmond Normal, February 3.
John Marshall-House of Happiness, February 4.
John Marshall-School of Social Work.
John Marshall-Life Insurance of Virginia.
John Marshall-Westhampton.

Official Games

John Marshall-St. Catherine, 23-45, February 14.
John Marshall-Collegiate, 9-27, March 2.
John Marshall-Ginter Park Com. House, March 9.



Tennis Team

JOHN MARSHALL started its fourth year in the tennis field with what promised to be a championship team. Due to the efforts of Pete Cevarich, "Skeeter" Hatcher, Mac Lapsley, Moses Creighton, Fred Eilers, and Franklin Foy of last year's team plus a wealth of new material, John Marshall should fly high in 1928.

Contests are arranged with many of this school's rivals. The men are concentrating their efforts on trying to bring home a cup to Alma Mater. This will mean a great deal since our school has few tennis cups in comparison with the cups won in other sports.

Already the men have gotten together and elected Foy as the new captain and Lynn H. Morris as the new manager.

Representatives to Charlottesville will be Franklin Foy and P. H. Hatcher.

TRACK
OLA HARRIS

1927 Track Team

Track

THE first call for track in 1928 came in January. Mr. Tom Miller, former last year's outdoor track coach, was indeed surprised and greatly pleased to find that four letter men were out to make the team. Added to this was the fact that an immense amount of new and promising material was on hand. The fellows got together, and as a result, "Plez" Bagby was elected as the new manager.

The first indoor meet was held February the eleventh at the Gray's Armory, being sponsored by the University of Richmond. On this occasion many of John Marshall's stars came to the front. Charlie Phaup walked away with second place in the half mile, and Duggins came dashing through with third place in the shot.

"M." Creighton, McLaren, Pettigrew, and Montford as our first relay team didn't do quite so well and met defeat at the hands of Technical High School from Washington.

Newton, Oppenheimer, Whitlow, and Culpepper, making up the second relay team, came out a little better, however, and defeated two Maryland high schools.

In this meet John Marshall came out quite well and won third place. We led the other competing high schools, however.

The second meet, sponsored by the University of Virginia, was held at Charlottesville on the twenty-fifth of February. Charlie Duggins, outstellar weight, having the sad and untimely fate of being sick, was unable to participate. Such a misfortune was indeed a blow to John Marshall and handicapped us to a certain extent. In lieu of Duggins, our little football star, Haase, stepped to the front and won first place in the shot! He also clawed down some honors by taking third place in the high jump. Smith came back with his old form to take his regular place in the forty-five-yard hurdles and second place in high jump. Phaup, our old standby, hummed around the track and won second place in the four-forty.

Creighton, Pettigrew, Hope, and McLaren, our first relay team, again met defeat at the hands of Technical High of Washington.

All in all, John Marshall took first place in the high school class. One of the main things that indoor track did for us this year was that it brought out Pettigrew and McLaren, of whom great things are expected. In a similar manner indoor track gave us many other new men, whom we shall hear of later.

The silver cup presented each term to the home room which reports one hundred per cent membership in the Athletic Association was won this year by Miss Ragland's 4A³-211, first term, and by Miss Park's 4A⁶-215, second term, in John Marshall; and by Miss Harrison's 2A¹-201 in George Wythe. As the last-named room has won this honor for three successive terms, it will keep this cup permanently.

JOHN MARSHALL'S 1927 baseball team will go down in history as one of the flashiest ever to fly the colors of the white and blue.

In blazing a conquering trail in Old Dominion prep circles, the Marshallites swept over some of the best in their class. They had a winning streak of thirteen in a row before a slick collection of freshman ball tossers from William and Mary College bowled over the "Justices" for a 4-to-2 count, and thus was interrupted in their triumphant march of conquests.

"Icky" Taylor captained the 1927 team.

Here are the Marshallites who won their spurs during the 1927 baseball season: Catcher, Jimmie Chenery; pitchers, Captain Icky Taylor, John Adams, Henry Taylor; first base, Billy Binford; second base, Clarence Oliver; shortstop, Lud Sherman; third base, Waddell Stewart; outfielders, Frank Moler, Jimmy Peay, and Jimmy Mayfield.

Warren Pearman was manager of the team.

Off to a flying start, the Marshallites nosed out the fresh from Richmond College, 6 to 5, Adams' clever pitching plus the timely hitting of his mates giving the "Justices" victory by an ace.

A trip through the Valley during the Easter holidays proved successful. Virginia freshmen were beaten, 6 to 3; while on the next day Washington and Lee yearlings were humbled, 7 to 4. Fittingly winding up the four-day tour, the "Justices" smashed out a 7-to-4 victory at the expense of Augusta Military Academy at Fort Defiance.

Benedictine, St. Christopher, and McGuire—the three prep rivals—didn't stand a Mongolian's chance of winning from John Marshall. The "Saints" were bumped off by scores of 16 to 0 and 7 to 0. Benedictine was no match, the scores being 18 to 2 and 8 to 0. McGuire, beaten in the first meeting, 7 to 2, saw the "Justices" triple the count in the second tussle. It was a score of 15 to 5.

Richmond College freshmen dropped another hard-fought game to the blue and white by a 10-to-7 score. The yearlings from Randolph-Macon were conquered by a count of 5 to 3.

Petersburg's crimson wave was twice engulfed. Scores: 5 to 2, 9 to 2.

To make a long story short, the Marshallite diamond artists finished a remarkably brilliant campaign after tasting the fruits of victory in fifteen games and the dregs of defeat in another. It was a great record, a great ball club, and a great season.

CADETS

Captain James C. Anthony

The Corps of Cadets

SEPTEMBER reorganization was completed in record time, many cadets returning to the corps with CMTC honors from Eustis and Monroe. Due to the transfer to Roanoke of Sergeant B. F. Hinson, for several years assistant commandant at John Marshall, two cadet captains of last year were assigned to staff duty. Cadet First Captain Sidney Page, however, graduated in February, and during the second term Cadet Captain A. W. Wrenn was named as first captain. The plan of having all new cadet training supervised by a former company commander proved an excellent improvement over the old system of leaving recruit instruction to the respective companies. By a more thorough co-ordination of this work recruits were properly trained for the companies several weeks prior to November 11, the first large parade of the year.

A semi-annual competitive drill was held in December. While all company exhibitions were necessarily short, due to lack of sufficient drill time, each company was informed of its faults and errors in detail, thus enabling company and platoon commanders to improve their units from the start after the Christmas holidays.

The battalion basketball competition, into which all companies entered with great enthusiasm, was won by Company "C."

Upon this occasion Mr. Harwood was the recipient of the following letter from Major-General Douglas MacArthur, Commanding General of the Third Corps Area:

33.1-ROTC
80 (2-24-28)

February 24, 1928.

MR. JAMES C. HARWOOD, Principal,
John Marshall High School,
Richmond, Virginia.

MY DEAR MR. HARWOOD:

The report of Lieutenant-Colonel Clarence Deems, Jr., Field Artillery, ROTC Officer at this headquarters, who recently inspected the John Marshall High School Cadets, is of such a commendatory character that it pleases me to offer congratulations to you, your professor of military science, and the corps of cadets.

Such a high degree of efficiency in practical work could be attained only through the most painstaking efforts of the entire body of cadets and the sound instruction imparted by the commandant, aided by the sympathetic support and co-operation of the school authorities.

With expressions of regard,

Cordially yours,

DOUGLAS MACARTHUR,
Major General, Commanding.

Copy of communication from Headquarters, Third Corps Area, Baltimore, Md.

The War Department inspection of February 21 concerned close order drill, guard mount, physical exercises, battalion inspection, and review, and military hygiene and first aid. A second inspection by Colonel Deems was held on April 17, at which time extended order work, scouting, patrolling, tent-pitching, display of infantry field-equipment, and machine-gun instruction were observed.

Competitive drills were held with Augusta Military Academy, at Fort Defiance, Blackstone Military Academy, at Blackstone, and Fork Union Academy, at Fork Union.

Two of the most successful dances in the history of the school were given by the hop committee, the first in February, as Mid-Winter Hop, and the second in May, as the Final Ball.

The military year was brought to a successful close with the annual battalion competitive drill and V. M. I. inspection on Byrd Park field on Wednesday, June 6.

As Others See Us

MISS WEISEGER

She sings "of arms and the man"
Always as hard as she can;
With Cicero, Vergil, and Caesar,
It takes the Latin to please 'er.

MR BEVERLEY

A country lad with pleasing face,
Quite the one to fill this space.

MR GIVENS

He's given to math, we can all see that;
But I wish he wouldn't hold it under his hat.

MR. SPEAR

Mr. Spear seems what he ain't;
He holds the brush and smears the paint.
Never does he make complaint;
Truly he must be a Saint!

MISS WILSON

She may be large, round, and fat,
But what the Heck do we care about that?
She puts the sunshine in the shade.
That's the finest compliment I ever paid.

MISS ENGLEBERG

Engelberg, Engelberg,
Jingle all the way;
I know more history now
Than I've known for many a day.

MISS SYDNOR

She blows the dust off history,
Reduces all of its mystery.
Her classes get quite blistery
If one doesn't know his history!

The University of Richmond

Offers to students of Richmond and vicinity the advantages of a group of strong standard colleges without the expense of travel and residence away from home. The three colleges in the University of Richmond group are so favorably known in Virginia and in other States and countries that many students have to be denied admission because there is no lodging for them on the campus. Only about 450 students can be accepted in college dormitories, but the enrollment this year, exclusive of summer school, is 950. About fifty more students can be enrolled in classes next session, though there will be no addition to dormitory accommodations. Richmond young men and young women should apply to the Deans for advance enrollment.

2. Westhampton College—Dean, May L. Keller

Build Your Homes with Cinder Block

Sixteen Reasons Why "CINDER BLOCKS" Are Better Building Units:

1. Strength—The highest structural efficiency of any masonry building material.
2. Tough—Is not brittle. Will stand rough handling without breaking.
3. Light Weight—Easy to handle; reduces building weight.
4. Durable—Will not rot or decay; not affected by temperature extremes or moisture; improves with age.
5. Easily Cut—Can be cut or channeled without breakage or waste.
6. Nailing—Receives and holds nails and screws just as wood, eliminating expense of nailing strips and plugs.
7. Fireproof—Greatest fire-resistant building unit made.
8. Frostproof—Not affected by repeated freezing and thawing.
9. Soundproof—Absorbs vibration; most efficient, economical masonry soundproofing material.
10. Damp-proof—Does not "sweat" or "mold"—furring strips and lathing unnecessary. Buildings always dry and conducive to good health.
11. Insulation—Non-conductor of heat, cold and electricity—keeps buildings a uniform temperature, a saving in heating.
12. Uniform Shapes and Sizes—Permit walls to be built straight and true; of uniform thickness. Less plaster used.
13. Rough Texture—Makes an ideal foundation or base for plaster or stucco without lathing.
14. Verminproof—Assures sanitary and healthful living conditions.
15. Economical—The utmost in building permanence with economy.
16. Non-Corrosive—Pipes nails, ties of other metals coming in contact with Cinder Blocks are not affected by rust or corrosion.

We invite inspection of our plant and manufacturing process. The more you find out about Cinder Blocks the more you will be impressed with the qualities of this wonderful building material.

After the poor woman had flatted and flatted until she had flatted practically all of her notes, the accompanist waved her to silence.

"Madam," he said mournfully, "it's no use. I gif up de chob. I play der black keys, I play der white keys—and always you sing in de cracks."
